

A framed illustration of three stylized houses. The house on the left has a brown roof with black wavy lines and six square windows arranged in two columns of three. The middle house has a blue roof with horizontal black stripes, a white circle in the center, and a single large rectangular window with horizontal lines. The house on the right has a green roof with black wavy lines and six square windows arranged in two columns of three. All three houses have a simple rectangular door at the base. Small green plants with three leaves are positioned in front of each house. Above the houses, two grey rain clouds are shown with vertical lines representing rain falling from them. The entire illustration is enclosed in a white rectangular border, which is itself within a larger grey frame.
